

Jinshan CEO attended Shanghai financial and mining conference to promote

Jinshan

Sponsored by the Global Financial, the GCOFF (Global Chinese Financial Forum) was held in the Conference Center of Grand Hyatt Hotel in Shanghai, China on December 2, 2009. Honored representatives from business, financial and government departments of many countries participated in the Forum. Jinshan Gold Mines Inc. ("Jinshan") CEO Xin Song attended the conference and made the theme speech entitled "Strengthen the Integration of Resources and Geological Prospecting, and Actively Implement the Overseas Development Strategy" at the Resources Acquisition Forum. To the representatives from different countries, Mr. Sun introduced Jinshan's current development, future development strategies, as well as Jinshan's largest shareholder China National Gold Group's constantly support for Jinshan's development. Meanwhile, in his speech, Xin Song also pointed out that the current economy has signs of stabilizing, but the recovery will be a slow and tortuous process. On this occasion, he hoped that Chinese and foreign enterprises join hands to promote world economy development. On the same day, Xin Song was invited to participate in the Asian Mining Forum organized by the Mongolian Mining Association, and delivered a speech and answered participants questions.

A series of activities of GCOFF sponsored by the Canadian Global Finance has become North America's largest Chinese-English bilingual financial interactive platform with a wide range of international influence. During the meeting, Xin Song conducted in-depth exchanges with guest speaker Robert Mundell, who is a Professor at Columbia University and Nobel laureate in economics in 1999, on the future's gold price trend. That night, Xin Song participated in the dinner hosted by the Hong Kong Association of Energy and Minerals. Xin Song recommended Jinshan to investors in the dinner. Many investors expressed their great interest in Jinshan, and hoped to keep in touch.

In the evening of December 4, in order to welcome the Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper's first visit to China, Canada-China Business Council and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce co-sponsored the "Canada-China Business Centuries Dinner". Xin Song was invited to attend. The dinner brought together more than 500 Chinese and Canadian business people. Taking this opportunity, Xin Song and many of Chinese and Canadian business people had fully communications and had in-depth conversations on the Sino-Canadian trade and investment and other aspects. Many well-known business leaders became to have understandings on Jinshan.
